

A light to my path. Psalm 119:105

Learning to Trust

At 1:45 a.m., January 30, 2010, I awoke suddenly feeling someone had shaken me, but no one had. I donned my robe and slippers, sat on the living room sofa, and began to pray. The mantel clock stuck 3 a.m.; a huge white form entered the room. I knew it had no ending in any direction, then I recognized the presence of God. He spoke to my mind saying, “Homer, if you think there is something you need to do, go where I send you. Just show up, for it is My work to do in you, and My work to do through you.” God’s presence departed. Over the past 10 years, I have learned to steadfastly trust God, with a thankful heart, in all circumstances. Sometimes it is easy; sometimes it is not. At all times God does not fail. Now, in this month and one day of COVID-19 quarantine, I still trust God for protection, provision, and peace. My blessing for you today is from Psalm 112:7, “He will not be afraid of evil tidings; his heart is steadfast, trusting in the Lord.” Shalom!!
