

A light to my path. Psalm 119:105

Come to Me!

We can say the statement, “Come to me,” as a request, challenge, demand, or seductively. When a woman says to her man, “Come to me,” he may think there is a task to be done. A man saying to his woman, “Come to me,” may bring hope of a hug or encouragement at a troubled time. When a mother or father calls their child, saying, “Come to me,” they hope it is not a command or demand ending with punishment.

Jesus’, “Come to me,” is a compassionate invitation given unconditionally. He knows when we are in fear and worried about something. His call invites us to receive rest, encouragement, or provision from him. Jesus’ invitation to come to him always gives love and comes without conditions. (Matthew 11:28-30), NKJV)

Beloved, we tend to work at meeting our own demands and those put on us by others. Working alone to meet demands often results in frustration, worry, and unfulfillment. Apart from Jesus, we can do nothing successfully. Coming to Jesus begins with a simple prayer. Your prayer knocks on his heart, opening the door to him. The result is an answer that meets your demands. Knock and the door will open for you. (John 15:7-8) Shalom!!
