

A light to my path. Psalm 119:105

Who Do You See?

Medical students carry a heavy burden of high academic performance. Their medical degrees are an exceedingly significant achievement. Graduating at the top of your class with a Doctor of Jurisprudence is a significant accomplishment. Becoming an owner of a multi-billion-dollar corporation is a measure of notable success. Success happens when a person applies themselves to whatever they choose to do. As a high achiever, who do you see? Is the focus on you? Do you think everything related to your success came out of your efforts alone? Let me burst your pride bubble and let in some truth (Proverbs 16:18, NKJV). God has been watching your hard work to prepare for the purpose He has given you (Psalm 139:1-4). During your preparation, He placed others on your path to help you. Other times He gave you favor through what other people did for you. You were never alone on your journey to your success. It was God who made you look like the genius you think you are. Perhaps you should take your eyes off yourself and look towards God, thanking Him for making you successful (1 Thessalonians 5:18). If you can do this, looking towards God instead of yourself, you are truly a successful person. When you go beyond yourself into a personal relationship with Jesus, you will enjoy greater success than you could ever imagine or dream of achieving (Ephesians 3:20-21).
Shalom!!
